MAJOR ZANNI ARRIVES IN SHANGHAI; WILL CONTINUE ATTEMPT TO GIRDLE GLOBE

Argentinian Aviator, Undaunted By Mishaps And Oncoming Of Winter, Expresses Firm Determination To Start Out Across Pacific; Will Probably Leave Here Friday

Winter's icy breath has already settled down on the Arctic North Pacific and converted an always desolate stretch of water into a region where life of any sort is almost impossible.

Major Pedro L. Zanni, Argentinian world aviator, knows all about that. Friends have told him that it would be suicide to carry on at this time of the year, and, unaided by naval patrols, to attempt a crossing of the Pacific. But Major Zanni is going to carry on.

"It may be suicide," he says, "but I should greatly prefer to die that way than to go back to Buenos Aires without at least trying it."

Flying on a schedule which tallied closely with that of the American round-the world aviators and Squadron Leader MacLaren, Major Zanni arrived in Shanghai at 3:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, exactly five hours after he had left Foochow. He explained his failure to put out from Foochow Sunday, when it was first announced that he would fly here, by reporting engine trouble. Monday and Tuesday inclement weather had held him up at Foochow.

Although nothing is definite as yet, Major Zanni, in all probability, will start from Shanghai for Kagoshima, Japan, on Friday morning. He intends to spend tomorrow in making minor repairs to his plane, as Shanghai is his last supply base before crossing the Pacific. He has two boxes of spare parts here. If he can complete these repairs and the work of refuelling in time, he will leave for Japan Friday morning, as he is anxious to go on as soon as possible. Other-

HEATED DEBATE IN COMMONS AS SESSION OPENS

House Is Convened To Discuss Bill Amending Irish Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 30.—The House of Commons was crowded and animated when it reassembled to discuss the Irish Treaty Amending Bill.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald was given an ovation by the Ministerialists upon entering the House.

Though the Bill was nominally the only business of the special session there was the usual batch of questions.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, replying as regards the position in Iraq, emphasised, amid Ministerial cheers, that there was no question of a state of war between Great Britain and Turkey. After detailing the position, he said that the British Government had not yet received a reply to its protests to

SHANGHAI MEN HAVE CLOSE CALL ON HUNTING TRIP

R. A. Curry And Frank Vida Invade War Zone Unawares

Two more prominent foreign residents of Shanghai have had a narrow escape from serious injury in connection with the present war between Kiangsu and Chekiang—and they were not looking for the war either—according to their account of the experience as told to a representative of THE CHINA PRESS yesterday.

They were Messrs. R. A. Curry, American architect and F. R. Vida, member of the Stock Exchange and local sportsman, and it happened this way: Unfamiliar with the complications which have developed in the politics of Chekiang province since the coming of Gen. Lu Yung-hsiang to Shanghai, Messrs. Curry and Vida started out last week-end on a hunting trip up the Whangpoo in the speedy motor launch Joyce. Knowing of a secluded spot somewhere along the banks of Sungkiang Creek where pheasants and other wild fowl were supposed to congregate they cruised toward the mouth of the creek failing to observe a number of peculiar appearing buoys which were floating about in the water. As they neared the opening to the creek they observed a number of Chinese farmers on the banks of the Whangpoo who were gesticulating in the direction of their launch but they paid no particular attention until they got well inside the mouth of the creek.

At this point a number of Chinese soldiers appeared on the bank and demanded in no uncertain terms that the launch pull in toward the shore. The Chinese servants on the boat immediately gave indications of extreme fright and threw themselves on the bottom of the boat. One Chinese house-boy on board however kept his senses and made it known to Messrs. Curry and Vida that their boat was in the midst of a mine field and that the soldiers were demanding that the motor launch be brought along side the bank of the creek.

Deciding that there could be no particular dishonor in flight, or at least in testing the speed of their boat they turned the boat about barely missing one or two of the mines in the attempt and headed back Shanghaiward. The soldiers then started firing and several bullets made rather sinister little splashes on the surface of the water on both sides. But they "stepped on the gas" and soon were out of danger. Just as they got out of the mine-field, there was an explosion in the rear and one of the mines, probably exploded by a rifle bullet sent a small geyser sky-ward, but it had no effect except to increase the speed of the Joyce.

Apparently the mouth of the creek had been mined by General Lu's forces to prevent the landing of enemy junks with troops or supplies in that vicinity.

First Fighting Is Seen Near Sungkiang; Prepare For Decisive Clash Soon

Skirmishes Take Place Between Kiangsu And Fukien Troops On Line Ten Miles Beyond City; Chekiang Defensive Position Strong

BY TALBOT PATRICK

Sungkiang, Oct. 1, 6 p.m.—The first fight in this sector occurred last night, while peace and rest were descending on the Huangtu-Kiating-Liuho line.

Today, while peace still reigned over the old fighting line, feverish activity marked preparations for a big battle expected on this front within several days. The Chekiang-Shanghai army has large numbers of coolies digging and strengthening defensive works, while the Fukien troops are being brought up the Hangchow railway and deployed out along the line from which they will attack.

Last night's affair was little more than a skirmish, though of considerable interest because the first fighting in this zone. Chuching village, about five miles southeast of the railway line and ten miles from Sungkiang on a line a trifle west of south, is the best mark of the scene of the engagement.

The village is held by about 1,000 Fukien men with four machine guns and six mountain guns. After dark last night, at about 8 o'clock, a party stole forward under cover of darkness. At the same time several small boats were pushed down a creek running into that which the Chekiang men had made their defense line.

ADVANCE DISCOVERED

Chekiang sentries discovered the advance and fire was opened on the Fukien men when they attempted to cross the creek on the small boats. After several apparent casualties, they withdrew. Rifle fire only was responsible for the repulse. There has been some other very light and occasional rifle fire, but nothing of great consequence.

Several Chekiang scouts in uniform were wounded while on a trip of investigation between their front line and the extending line of the Fukienese. They reported that they were fired upon without warning by another party of men dressed as country people and without any sort of distinguishing marks. From reports of farmer refugees the Chekiang leaders are inclined to believe that a number of parties of Fukien men are scouting about in disguise.

The Chekiang defense line in this sector roughly resembles two arcs with the incurves toward Shanghai, according to the information given me today at the Sungkiang headquarters. The end of one arc is thin air, so to speak, between two and three miles south of Chuehing village and about thirteen one a line bit west of due south from Sungkiang. It does not quite reach Lungtouho.

LINE FOLLOWS CREEKS

From this point the arc curves in toward Shanghai to cross the railway line on the near side of the big wrecked bridge No. 34, about nine miles beyond Sungkiang. Going from Shanghai, this is the second of two big bridges beyond Sungkiang. The line follows the bank of a smaller creek tributary to the large one which goes under the bridge until about three miles from the railway.

Here another arc commences as the line follows another split in the water course and runs back in a jump to the bank of a large [illegible] of the Whang[illegible] river Sungking out of Tienshou lake, one of the small lakes east of Taihu. A little further up the lake bank is the line which extends from Huangtu down past Chingpu.

Practically the whole of this defense line is protected by water

MUKDEN BEGINS BIG OFFENSIVE ALL ALONG LINE

Fengtien Troops Start General Attack On Chihli

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Mukden, October 1.—According to a report from Headquarters a general engagement developed along the front this morning, the Fengtien troops under General Li Ching-lin and General Chang Tsung-chan assuming the offensive.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, October 1.—According to information emanating from a reliable source, Marshal Wu Pei-fu on September 20 sent an urgent telegram to General Wang Hsai-ching, Commander-in-Chief of the Second Chihli Army, asking him to despatch his troops to the regions of Kanhonchen, Toutaoing, Erhtaoying and Santaoying in order that his troops may keep in touch with the left wing of the First Chihli Army stationed in the district of Kankouchen.

The 7th Mixed Brigade commanded by Chang Tze-kiang has already reached Lanping, while the cavalry force of the Third Chihli Army under the command of General Feng Yu-hsiang is now staying in the region of Chienchintun and Poling. Part of the 13th Chihli Division under General Wang Huai-ching is still waiting for rolling-stock at Lanchow station, and it is only a minority of the 13th Division that has already arrived at Pingchuan.

On the other hand, Marshal Wu Pei-fu has also given orders to General Chang Fu-lai immediately to proceed to Lanchow at the head of part of the 23rd, 3rd, and 20th Chihli Divisions and to reinforce the Second Chihli Army.

General Hu Ching-yeh, Commander of the 1st Shensi Division, who was in Tungchow, waiting for instructions from Marshal Wu Pei-fu, has wired to the latter, reporting that he left Tungchow for the front on September 30.

General Wang Huai-ching has lately wired to Marshal Wu, requesting him to purchase and despatch 25,000 for overcoats to the troops of the Second Chihli Army at the front.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Sept. 30.—A special despatch from Shanhaikuan reports that on the night of September 28, the right wing of the Fengtien troops advanced towards Shanhaikuan. The time for fighting between the main forces of the Fengtien and Chihli troops is imminent.

The Chihli troops have already completed the construction of defensive positions some 600 metres outside the Great Wall,

CONTINUOUS FIGHTING IS ENDED AFTER FOUR DAYS; LINE STRAIGHTENED OUT

Last Dent In Malu Sector Ironed Out Yesterday After Which Chekiang Masses More Men For Fresh Attack This Morning; Ma Liang To Take Acting Part On Sungkiang Front

After four days of severe fighting, both Kiangsu and Chekiang took a rest yesterday. The battle line, as a result, has been straightened; several dangerous bends of the Chekiang defence line were ironed out; and fighting yesterday was of a desultory character.

The dent in the Malu sector, caused by the big push on Saturday, was pressed out early yesterday morning when Chekiang men thrust back the Kiangsu troops two miles north, according to the Lunghua headquarters, inflicting more than 100 casualties.

The Chekiang army, after the lull which begun at about ten in the morning, massed troops at Peiyukiang in the Tsingpu-Huangtu sector and Fantai between Kiating and Huangtu in anticipation of fresh attacks, which Lunghua believes will be launched this morning.

At Tsingpu, the Chekiang forces under Colonel Ching Pengcheng took the offensive on Tuesday night. Firing became less intense yesterday morning when he claimed to have captured one field piece, 50 rifles and more than 60 prisoners.

Prisoners taken to Lunghua from the Huangtu sector said yesterday that the Shantung brigade under General Pan Hungchun has been recalled from there to participate in the Mukden clash, while the expeditionary force of 5,000 from Hupeh has suffered about 2,000 casualties and is no longer being used by Kiangsu in the front line of defense.

At noon yesterday five Chekiang airplanes took off at the Lunghua aviation ground and flew to Taitsang, Fangtai, Liuho, Lutang and Tsingpu on scouting service. No bombs were dropped.

In command of 1,200 veterans of the Chihli-Anfu struggle, General Ma Liang, former Military Commissioner of Tsinan, left here for Sungkiang yesterday. He is stationing his soldiers at the Kwanwang Temple.

SUNGKIANG SKIRMISH

A report from the railway authorities late last night said that skirmishing between vanguards of Chekiang and Fukien armies took place in the neighborhood of Fengking yesterday, but the report could not be confirmed.

The report stated that Fukien troops in civilian clothes attempted to cross the bridge No. 24 between Fengking and Shihhutang. When they were questioned by the Chekiang sentinels, they threw a few bombs and injured two or three Chekiangese. The report of rifles attracted other Chekiang men and the Fukienese were driven away after wounding a few. The bridge is guarded by the 37th and 38th regiment of the Tenth division.

Only two minor assaults were made by Kiangsu on Liuho yesterday, one at 7 o'clock and the other at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, each lasting only two hours. More than 20,000 Kiangsu men are massed in the Liuho sector, consisting of one Hupeh regiment, one brigade of the sixth division under General Kung Pan-tu and another brigade under Chang Jen-kwei.

A telegram from the Chamber of Commerce at Ningpo by the local Ningpo Association, Ningpo is quiet following the return of Pan Kuo-kan's division.

Ningpo arrivals yesterday stated that Hsia Chao, Governor of Chekiang, in attempting to make a deal with General Pan, sent Mr. Yih Huan-chang, vice-chairman of the Provincial Self-Government Commission, to approach him, offering to remit him the monthly allowance for his troops. But Pan was non-committal, asserting that he had returned to Ningpo to maintain the peace of his home district.

WENCHOW OCCUPIED

According to the Kuo Wen News Agency, Fukien troops began their occupation of Wenchow, Chekiang, on Sunday. While there is no looting, heavy demands have been made on the local populace for money and supplies.

Local educational bodies and street unions have decided to observe October 5 as the National Humiliation Day by hoisting the national colors at half mast. On October 5 last year, Tsao Kun was elected by Parliament as President of the Republic.

Seventy-six wounded were brought back yesterday: three from Liuho and the rest from Huangtu, according to the nightly bulletin issued by Dr. W. S. New, field director of the Chinese Red Cross. Of these seven died upon their arrival, 20 were seriously

LIUHO FIGHTING DESULTORY NOW; LINES ARE NEAR

Opposing Forces Only Fifty Yards Apart In Center Of Sector

BY D. J. LEWIS

Zu Kio Chiao (5 li from Liuho) October 1, 8 p.m.—Due to the courtesy of Col. Chang Yi-Sheng permission was ganted today for the representative of The China Press to proceed to Zu Kio Chaio within five li of Liuho. The Red Cross station formerly maintained at this point has been removed to Liuho.

The troops formerly on the Ishing [illegible] Lake Liuho) and stationed for sometime at Lootien are now in the Chekiang front lines about one li to the west of the motor road. The three field pieces formerly located on the motor road just outside of Zu Kio Chiao have been removed to other positions.

In the center of the Liuho sector the opposing trenches are within fifty yards of each other. The Chekiang forces derive considerable amusement in holding up various articles of food and offering to present them to the Kiangsu troops if they will call for same. Chekiang claims the Kiangsu commissary is not on the job. Night raids are frequent at this point. Both sides are well entrenched and no serious attacks have been made during the last two days. It looks like a long drawn out affair since Kiangsu is now adopting a defensive attitude here.

Chekiang apparently has ample supplies of all kinds. The only traffic noticed today on the road was several trucks bringing back coffins from Liuho. Only three wounded came through from Liuho during the day.

Kiangsu spies are apt to make the free movement of the country people during the day time a trifle harder in the future. This evening at 7 p.m. six men dressed in usual country garb made an attack on the armed guard at a bridge some ten li from Lootien but were driven off before they could damage the bridge in any way.

Kating is apparently quieter than usual this evening no firing was noticed in that locality this evening.

The cotton crop in this section has been a good one and is being gathered and shipped to Shanghai as far as Zu Kio Chiao. The fighting at Liuho has made it impossible to gather the crop in that vicinity and it will be a total loss.

Settlement Reached In Dispute Over Arms Pact

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 30.—The British, French and Italian jurists today agreed on the working of the article of the protocol regarding which Mr. Adachi (Japan) had raised difficulty. The terms are not yet known.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 30.—The difficulty raised by the Japanese by their amendment to the article of the disarmament protocol relating to the action of the Council in dealing with disputes involving domestic affairs of a nation, which threatened to wreck the protocol, was overcome today when the committee of jurists redrafted the disputed article and the Japanese withdrew their amendment.

The Japanese objection was overcome by reinforcing Article XI of the Covenant, namely, that the Council is empowered to intervene with a view to the pacific settlement of disputes.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 30.—After the Japanese difficulty was overcome the Disarmament Sub-Committee met to complete the protocol. Prior to this the British Dominions Delegations were consulted. Reuter understands that they are satisfied with the wording of the proposed formula as eliminating any apprehensions they may have entertained; while it is satisfying to the Japanese.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 30.—The end of the deadlock, when the plenary committee unanimously adopted the amendments to Articles V and VI of the protocol, was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers.

Article V previously provided that the Court of International Justice should decide whether a dispute was solely within the domestic jurisdiction of a disputant. The addition now made stipulates that an affirmative decision by the Hague Court will not prevent consideration of the situation by the Council or the Assembly of the League under Article XI of the Covenant.

Article VI defines an aggressor, inter alia, as a State resorting to war in violation of the undertakings contained in the Covenant or of the protocol or resorting to war knowing that the dispute between it and another belligerent State arises out of a matter which, by international law, is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the latter State. The amendment says, that, nevertheless, such a State shall only be considered the aggressor if it has not previously submitted the question to the Council or the Assembly under Article XI of the Covenant.

Another clause in the same Article defines an aggressor also as a State violating an armistice ordered by the Council. It also empowers the Council to call upon signatories to apply the prescribed sanctions. The addition to this clause now made provides that any signatory thus called upon shall be entitled to exercise the rights of a belligerent.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 30.—The solution of the Japanese difficulty, which has caused widespread relief and satisfaction, was reached after a meeting of the British, French, Italian and Japanese jurists, after which the British Dominion delegates conferred and declared themselves satisfied with the new text.

A very cordial spirit of conciliation prevailed throughout the discussions. Mr. Adatchi was deeply touched by the committee's sympathetic efforts to give him satisfaction. He declared that if all the committeemen were ready to accept the articles he was ready to do the same.

It is ascertained that throughout the discussions between the Dominions and Empire delegations the question of immigration never once arose.

CANTON CLAIMS WITHDRAWAL IS ONLY STRATEGY

Sun Yat-sen To Call Back His Proposed Expedition To North

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Sept. 30.—The report that the so-called allied troops belonging to Dr. Sun's faction have retreated as far back as Shekpei from Sheklung in the district of the East River has been denied by official circles here, which claim that the allied troops have merely established a defence line at Hsientsun as already planned.

Military authorities here declare that since the proposal for compromise between Dr. Sun and General Chen Chiung-ming has proved a failure, Dr. Sun has formed a plan to withdraw the expeditionary forces against the North concentrated in Shaokwan to the district of Hoyunhsien by way of Wengyuan and Lungmen, menacing in their retreat all along the border of Kiangsi with a view to cutting off the retreat of General Chen's troops.

They add that the withdrawal from the district of the East River of Dr. Sun's troops is not due to their defeat in the battle, but a mere strategic retreat, a matter which can be testified to by the fact that there are none of General Chen's troops in the vicinity of Sheklung.

ROSENFELDS ARE GIVEN JUDGMENT IN MIXED COURT

Cotton Brokers Are Awarded Tls. 30,032 In Action On Contract

A. B. Rosenfeld and Son, cotton brokers, were awarded a judgment of Taels 30,032 in the Mixed Court yesterday from Yih Foo Hung and Tsur Tsei, for failure to deliver cotton on contract.

Schuhl and Schoenfeld appeared for the plaintiff and claimed that their clients had entered into a contract on September 10, 1923 with the defendants who argeed to deliver 2,000 bales of cotton at Taels 34.50 per bale. The plaintiffs alleged that the Chinese failed to deliver the cotton and they were forced to go into the market and purchase cotton at Taels 47.40.

The defense, represented by Sellett and Blume, stated that Tsur Tsei, who appeared in court, was not a member of the firm which was being sued.

The court awarded the plaintiff judgment to the amount of Taels 30,032.

LEAGUE ACTS TO BRING PEACE IN MOSUL DISPUTE

Special Committee Appointed To Conduct Inquiry And Report

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 30.—A step towards the settlement of the Mosul difficulty has been taken by the Council of the League in appointing a special committee of three to enquire into the matter on the spot and report to the Council. Both sides undertake to maintain the status quo of the frontier until a decsion, which they will accept, has been reached by the Council.

Lord Parmoor said that fresh information showed that the frontier situation was precarious. He emphasised that there must be no disturbance, and gave a solemn undertaking on behalf of the British Government in that connection.

Fethi Bey gave a similar assurance: and it was announced that both parties would share the cost of the investigation by the special committee.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 30.—Reuter's Agency is informed that the situation in Iraq appears to be that Turkish troops are still within the boundary of the Mosul vilayet and have burned villages, but no offensive has been taken by the British aeroplanes since Sept 24 except where the aeroplanes have first been fired on. In the meantime both sides have established a line on which it is not likely that they will clash. It is believed that Lord Thomson, the Secretary of State for Air, is at Mosul.

Release Of Hitler Checked By Police

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 30.—The police authorities have vetoed the release of Herr Hitler, who was to be released by the Munich Provincial Court on October 1, alleging that while in confinement he has actively participated in the reorganisation of illegal societies into one big organisation called the "Frontbann", which aims at the overthrow of the Constitution and the restoration of the monarchy.

The Nationalists are excited over the non-release of their champion. The Bavarian police have been ordered to be ready for all emergencies.

injured and had to be operated upon.

SUN'S MEN CLASH WITH HANGCHOW POLICE

Hangchow, September 28.—The only fight, so far as Hangchow has heard, that the soldiers of General Sun Chuan-fang, have had part in since their arrival, took place on the streets here yesterday in difference sections of the city between soldiers and local police, with opium as the root of the matter.

The soldiers seem to think our guardians of the law ought to know all that there was to know about opium, and asked them for specific information as to where it could be bought. The police answered out of inexcusable ignorance that they did not know. Such a thing was apparently new in the experience of our friends recently from Fukien, and they were utterly unable to understand how one whose business it was to know where opium is sold could fail to know, and forthwith emphasised their unbelief with slaps on the port cheek of the police.

Remembering perhaps that their chief, now acting Civil Governor also, is a Christian, and not unmindful may be of scriptural injunction, or even mayhaps desiring to keep the peace whose sworn duty it is to guard, the police turned their other cheeks and the first brave fight of the new-comers was over.

Oppose Subsidy To Australian Ships For Trade In East

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, Sept. 30.—The Commonwealth Board of Trade states that there is nothing to justify their recommending the Federal Government to subsidise ships to develop Australian trade in the East, where apparently anti-Australian sentiment exists.

According to the Board of Trade the higher Australian manufacturing costs preclude competition with overseas countries.

extending from the seashore on the right to Chuehshan on the left with the former Russian fort as the center, arranging field and heavy guns as well as high-angle guns behind the defences.

Troops are still constantly arriving to reinforce the Chihli troops on all fronts.

A number of Fengtien aeroplanes have again appeared over the Chihli positions. Early yesterday morning and from 5 to 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon skirmishes took place between the vanguards of the two hostile armies. At about 8 o'clock last night, the sound of rifles mixed with the casual sound of field-pieces began to be plainly heard again. It is believed that the Fengtien forces made a night attack.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Mukden, Oct. 1.—According to a report received here today Kienchang has been occupied by the Fengtien army, some Chihlites were taken prisoners, and several guns captured.

First Fighting Is Seen In Sungkiang

which must be crossed to get at it, similar to the strong positions up before Huangtu and Anting. In places it allows of retreat for Chekiang to still wider watercourses.

The open flank looks dangerous, of course. But at Liuho we have seen that Chekiang's opponents are not strong on passing around a flank. And at Sungkiang the end of the arc can easily be drawn back to extend the line to the bank of the southern one of the two main tributaries to the Whangpoo, where the defense forces are believed to have armed boats which would be of great help in a fight along the bank. As the river goes, this would be nearly fifty miles from Shanghai, and about thirty-five in a direct line.

Today, I am told, Chekiang has about 5,000 men on and in reserve behind this defense line. Fukien has about 3,000 men on the front line it is deploying and more men are being brought up. The time of attack will depend almost entirely on the speed with which the attacking parties can be transported into position.

The strongest attack is not expected to be along the rail line. Chekiang has a strong artillery force well emplaced beside the line and on this account, as well as the ease by which reinforcements can be hurried up by rail, is leaving a much smaller group of infantry here than Fukien has across the ruins of the bridge. The Fukienese have only a battery of mountain guns at the railway.

Toward Chingpu, both sides are weak at present. The Chekiang commander at Chingpu is understood to have asked for more men, field guns and a large supply of ammunition, in anticipation of an attack in the near future. He may have received information that Kiangsu men said to have been taken away from his front for the attacks Sunday and Monday to the northward are being sent back or else may have reason to believe that Fukien men will join the Kiangsu troops opposite him.

It was not believed that reinforcements would be sent to Chingpu, which has been one of the most quiet parts of the line all through the war, until a more imperative need developed.

The transport system about Sungkiang is practically all by water, only a few things going up by rail and over the damaged bridge No. 31 five miles beyond Sungkiang. Large boats towed by launches travel the larger waterways and then smaller boats go off on the smaller creeks to carry ammunition, supplies and men almost into the front lines.

Several large hospitals have been prepared at Sungkiang in anticipation of a large number of wounded and stretchers have been distributed along the front in accordance with the experience gained from the fighting on the other sectors.

Leave Is Given To Transport Bodies Of War Dead Here

Following correspondence exchanged between the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, the Consular Body and the Municipal Council, permission has been granted the Lien-Yi Charity Society to transport in the Settlement bodies of soldiers who die in Red Cross hospitals here, according to today's issue of the Municipal Gazette. A special permit in the matter has been granted to Mr. Lu Wen-chong, director of the society.

Anarchy In Mecca, Traveller Reports

Cairo, September 30.—A meeting of Egyptian press representatives decided to telegraph the Sultan of Nejo whose Wahabi tribesmen are only a few miles from Mecca, begging him to show humanity to the civilian population of Medina. King Hussein has mobilised the police in connection with the transfer of the Government to Jeddah. The population are defenceless against the increasing robbery and violence.

Ningpo Is Excited; Food Prices High

(China Press Correspondence)

Ningpo, September 29.—Feeling is running high among the populace in the treaty port of Ningpo. The wealthy classes have moved out of the city to somewhere in the villages and even more to Shanghai, where they can secure protection. Tiaofu (coolie-bearers) charge very high rates, and amass a lot of money out of their business. For instance a sedan chair from the city to the settlement would cost forty cents in peace time but now costs eighty cents and in some cases a dollar.

Another phenomenon is the increase in prices of foodstuffs. Rice (now no pork, as people do not care for pork), and fish, have been going up constantly.

The provincial middle schools in the city have closed indefinitely. Although attempts were made last Tuesday by the principal of the Fourth Middle School, Mr. Kying Ts-yuen, to open no appreciable results can be seen. The mission schools are, however, crowded.

The local Sz-Zs Kong Pao, a daily registered in the Italian consulate, reports today that the Higher Primary School at Chinghai is being used to quarter the Chekiang forces.

Benefits Of Dawes Scheme Reflected In French Budget

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, September 30.—The prospective receipts of the Dawes scheme are reflected in the 1925 budget, which M. Clementel, the Minister of Finance, has presented to the Finance Commission.

For the first time since the War equilibrium of revenue and expenditure has been achieved.

An innovation is the merging of the general budget with the so-called special budget of recoverable expenditure, which hitherto has formed a supplementary instrument, presupposing the ultimate receipt of overdue reparations payments from Germany.

The new budget estimates expenditure at Frs. 32,456,000,000 and revenue Frs. 29,854,000,000. A deficit to the extent of Frs. 1,777,000,000 will be met by new taxation, including a small tax on exports, and the remainder by receipts from Germany.

Italian Opera

The Italian Opera Company played to a crowded and enthusiastic house upon the occasion of the opening, last night, of a short season at the Olympic Theater. Their performance of Verdi's Il Trovatore was exceptionally fine, and unstinted praise is due to the several talented artistes of which the cast was formed. Much has recently been made of the newly engaged singers, and now that it has been possible to hear them, one must say that individually and collectively, they fulfilled all expectations.

With a much altered chorus and orchestra, the performance left but little room for improvement. Signora Lashkova, the prima donna, possesses a brilliant voice, purely dramatic in quality, and her interpretation of Leonora was noble and sympathetic. The Signore Corbetta and Serangelli as Manrico and the Count respectively were conceptions of the highest order, and Signora Minotti, in the wild character of the gypsy, won much appreciation from the audience for her artistic reading and fine contral to voice.

Mention must also be made of Barontini and Paterna, and Signora Polastri for their whole hearted contribution to an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Major Zanni Here; Will Girdle Globe

wise, his departure may be postponed until Saturday morning.

IN SPLENDID CONDITION

Both Major Zanni and his mechanic, Mr. Felipe C. Beltrame, are in splendid physical condition. Major Zanni shows no ill effects from his recent accident at Hongkong, when he was nearly drowned by being thrown into the water from a motor boat.

Following the long wait in vain on Sunday, Mr. A. del Carril, representative of the Argentinian Government in Shanghai, postponed departure of the official welcoming party for Black Point until after word of Major Zanni's departure from Foochow had reached here. The official party, headed by Mr. del Carril, and including consular representatives, representatives of the Chinese government and newspapermen, left the Nanking Road jetty aboard the Asiatic Petroleum Company's launch Feng Chuan at 1 o'clock for Black Point, where landing arrangements had been made.

Shortly after 3 o'clock, Major Zanni's plane was sighted, flying at an altitude of about 1,000 meters above Shanghai. Ten minutes later, he was at Black Point, and by this time had descended to about 300 meters. Instead of attempting a landing immediately, however, he made a wide circle over the Pootung shore, and then back, almost to the heart of Shanghai, descending gradually. Returning, his plane hit the water some distance below the landing-place and taxied to a stop alongside the three American destroyers moored at the upper end of the Standard Oil wharfs.

TOWED TO BUOY

Mr. del Carril and Mr. A. Arce, consul for Chile, who had gone out in a sampan to meet him, hastened alongside. A Standard Oil launch was brought up and, after a line had been thrown out to the plane, it was towed to the buoy. It was some time, however, before Major Zanni and his mechanic could be induced to leave the plane. Warned by their experience at Hanoi, where his plane crashed because it had been soaked in the heavy rains, the aviators stretched tarpaulin covers over the propellers, engine and cockpit, so as to avoid damage in the event of rain.

On the official launch, the Argentinian flyer, after being greeted by consular officials and presented with a bouquet by Miss Chen, daughter of Mr. S. K. Chen, chief secretary of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs, answered cheerfully, in Spanish, French and a few words of English, the endless stream of questions put to him.

The trip from Foochow, a distance which he estimated at 450 miles, had been without incident, he said. The weather, contrary to his expectations after two days of heavily clouded skies in Foochow, had been remarkably pleasant, and his engine had functioned perfectly. Instead of following the coast line, he had flown the greater part of the distance overland, and he had had no difficulty in picking out his route.

COULDN'T FIND WAR

"I was looking for the war," he remarked jocularly, "but I couldn't see a single gun."

His chief interest, however, was focussed on what lay ahead of him.

"They tell me I am committing suicide," he said, "but I would rather die than return to Buenos Aires without at least trying to cross the Pacific. How far shall I go? I don't know, but I shall go on just as far as I possibly can. Then, if I am forced down, I will be ready to admit failure, but only then."

And he meant it. Major Zanni's is not the boastful enthusiasm of youth. Closely-cropped hair, already well sprinkled with gray, and a general appearance more nearly that of middle age than youth, stamp him as a veteran rather than a novice.

He apologised profusely for his appearance, for he had not had time to shave, and the palm beach suit and white sweater which he wore showed signs of hard usage.

In many ways, Major Zanni's flight is the most spectacular of all four attempts made this year to circle the globe by air. Starting from Amsterdam late in June, he had established a new record when he reached Hanoi, and that not without handicaps, for he has had no naval assistance en route, and he suffered the misfortune of losing his pilot, Lieut. Nelson Page, at Paris, where the latter was stricken with appendicitis.

CRASHED AT HANOI

He crashed at Hanoi, while taking off, owing to his plane having been soaked by heavy rains, but even that could not stop him. A spare plane, which had been kept at Yokohama but which was considerably smaller than the one in which he started originally, was sent to him by an American destroyer. This is the plane which he is now flying, a Fokker fitted with a 450 horsepower Napier-Lyon engine.

In one respect Major Zanni has been fortunate, for all along his route he has had the active assistance of agencies of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, which is arranging his entire itinerary. Here as elsewhere, the arrangements for his landing were efficiently handled by the Asiatic Petroleum Company, which forwarded detailed maps and plans to him.

Although Major Zanni would not admit it, he is said, on the authority of Mr. del Carril, to have been promoted to a lieutenant-colonelcy recently by the Argentinian Government as a mark of appreciation for his achievements so far. No official word of the promotion has been received by the aviator as yet, however.

From Shanghai, Major Zanni will follow the course taken by the American round-the-world aviators. Kagoshima, Japan, is his next stop. Then he will go on to Tokio, and from there, if possible, to Northern Japan, the Kuriles, the Aleutian Islands and so across the Pacific.

Because of Major Zanni's wish to lose as little time as possible in continuing his journey, no formal entertainment program has been arranged for him here. Last night, he was the guest of Mr. del Carril at dinner. Today he is to be the tiffin guest of the Shanghai Rotary Club, which recently received a cable from the Rotary Club of Buenos Aires asking it to convey felicitations to Major Zanni. Later in the afternoon, he will make an official call at the Bureau of Foreign Affairs.

Foochow, Oct. 1.—Major Zanni left Foochow at 10.20 this morning, after encircling the city.

France Defends Tax Imposed On Germany

Paris, Sept. 30.—The French reply to the German Note in connection with the levying of the 26 percent tax points out that the tax is the same as that levied by Britain and mentioned in the Dawes plan. It declares that no additional burden is laid on the German Government and that France does not intend to depart from the Dawes plan.

Heated Debate In Commons As Session Opens

the Turkish Government against the invasion. He added that the local authorities reported that the military situation was well in hand.

A storm arose as a result of questions with regard to the dropping of the prosecution of Mr. Campbell, the editor of the Workers' Weekly, for alleged incitement of the fighting forces to disobey orders.

Sir Patrick Hastings, the Attorney-General, said that as a result of careful investigation he had come to the conclusion that it was impossible to hold Mr. Campbell criminally responsible for the publication of the article in question Sir Patrick Hastings denied emphatically that his decision had been influenced by outside representations.

Mr. MacDonald intervened in the subsequent heated exchanges between Conservative and Labor Members. The Prime Minister declared that he was not willing to allow an explanation of the real circumstances as to the dropping of the prosecution. It would be delayed till the autumn.

Eventually it was arranged that all parties should debate the question next week, when the House of Lords was dealing with the Irish Bill.

Mr. Baldwin hinted that the Opposition might move a vote of censure of the Government.

Mr. MacDonall, moving the second reading of the Irish Bill, declared that if the Bill were not introduced it would be equivalent to the Treaty lapsing. The Government had exhausted every effort to secure an agreement agreeable to both the Irish parties and had not moved until it had been convinced that nothing else was possible.

The Prime Minister appealed to all parties to help to pass the Bill as a bill of honor. He expressed the opinion that in such a case the Bill might never have to be brought into operation. Unanimity would be an Imperial appeal to Ulster to be magnanimously loyal to her compact, upon the carrying out of which the peace of Ireland depended.

Mr. Baldwin and Mr Asquith announced that they would not oppose the second reading, the former stating that amendments would be moved in committee. It was a tragedy, the Conservative leader declared, that the boundary question should be raised at a time when the whole of Ireland was considerably pacified.

Moving the rejection of the Bill, Mr. D. D. Reid (Conservative: Down) took the orthodox Ulster line that no change of boundary should be made without the consent of the Government concerned.

Mr. J. I. MacPherson, the Liberal Chief Secretary for Ireland when the 1920 Act was under discusson, supported rejection of the Bill. He declared that pledge had been given to Ulster that she would be left her six counties.

The debate proceeded very quietly and was ultimately adjourned.

Council Refuses To Remove Barrier On Settlement Border

Application made by Messrs. Rodger and Husar that the barrier placed by the Municipal authorities on the settlement boundary on Euh Kai Road, opposite the Harbin Road Police Station be removed so as to permit free access to the Ning Woo Dah Theater has been refused by the Council, according to today's issue of the Municipal Gazette.

On behalf of the theater, Messrs. Rodger and Husar asked that a gateway be made in the iron fence placed across the road by the Council, but the Council, in replying, pointed out that the barrier had been erected under military advice and that it is undesirable to make any opening in it.

Council Sanctions New Company For Volunteer Corps

Sanction has been granted by the Municipal Council for the formation of a new company to be designated temporarily as "C" Company, Shanghai Volunteers, according to notification appearing in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette.

The new company has enrolled 48 members from the Scandinavian, Dutch and Swiss communities. They will first be given infantry training and later form the nucleus of a new 2.75 inch gun battery.

SERIOUS CHARGE IS MADE AGAINST FOREIGNER HERE

Alleged Assault Upon 10-Year-Old Girl Is Charged

A charge of assault was made against a British schoolmaster here before Magistrate G. W. King in the British Police Court yesterday. The complainant is a little foreign girl about ten years of age. Mr. J. H. Teesdale appeared for the complainants and Mr. M. B. Brown for the defence.

Mr. Teesdale outlined the case for the complainant. The assault was said to have taken place at Hongkew Park on the morning of September 20. The little girl went with her brother and a smaller girl to a group of trees near the band stand, not far from the fourth hole. The defendant, who was playing golf, went over to the tree where the complainant was sitting, climbed the tree, and sat down beside her. The little girl later went home and told her mother of the incident, and the following day the parents took the child to the park, where she identified the accused.

Detective-Sergeant Forkin gave evidence of arresting defendant on a warrant at his home September 27. Mr. Van Corbeck, a surveyor, also appeared as witness, producing plans of the park and describing the spot. Mr. Crooks, the park-keeper, testified to having seen the defendant in the Junior Golf Club at the park on the morning in question.

The little girl's evidence was taken in privacy, the reporters leaving the Court.

After this another little girl, the complainant's companion, appeared as witness. She said she had seen the defendant climb the tree and sit beside the little girl.

The mother of the complainant said the girl had come home on the morning in question and told her that a foreigner had climbed the tree she was in and abused her. The parents went with the little girl and her brother to the park next day and the children identified the foreigner. The case was adjourned for a further hearing.

The dissatisfaction of the National University with the personnel of the newly formed Sino-American Commission to handle the remitted American Boxer indemnity funds, is referred to in the Chinese press, which places it on two grounds. It is felt that the Chinese members should have been drawn entirely from educational circles instead of including representatives from industrial and political lines as well. In the second place, the University feels slighted since its Chancellor Tsai Yuan-pei did not get a membership, despite the fact that the acting Chancellor, Chiang Mengling, is one of the members. The failure to appoint Tsai is blamed partly on the alleged opposition of Dr. Monroe.

MEET TO ARRANGE WALKING MATCH THIS AFTERNOON

American Team Necessary; Great Interest Aroused

All interested in the International Walking Match being arranged for next month are reminded that a meeting will be held at Shepherd's Hotel, on Kiangse Road, at 5:30 this afternoon, for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to the match and appointing committees to handle all details regarding it.

The revival of this match last year, it will be remembered, called out great interest, fifty-six walkers starting on the long hike of seventeen miles around the Rubicon, N. Webb (English) winning in the excellent time of 2 hrs. 36 min. 30 sec. The English team won, with three of the first four men in, while the Irish were a good second. Handsome prizes, not the least of which was THE CHINA PRESS cup, were awarded to the successful participants.

One thing which was lacking last year was an American team One American entered as an individual, but this is far from satisfactory, when we remember that the Irish, Scotch, and other nationalities which are considerably outnumbered by the Americans here, put in teams. There are certainly enough American hikers here to get together four good men to compete in this year's walk, and the sooner they start training the better. Training together is of more importance in walking than any other form of foot-racing.

Further information regarding this event can be gotten from Mr. W. L. Gerrard, care of Messrs. Duncan and Co., 32 Avenue Edward VII, and entries can be made there. It is very desirable, however, that everyone interested turn up at today's meeting. If Americans desirous of entering will attend this afternoon a team can be formed at once and training started. The sporting editor of The China Press will be present at today's meeting, and will be glad to give any assistance possible in this respect.

Boxing Notes

By Harvard

Tonight's program at the Carlton looks like a hummer. Young Volaire is going to meet Bobby Favacho in the main event. Bobby gave rather a poor exhibition last time they met, but he has fought a few victories since then and is confident he can get the better of Volaire tonight. He has promised to do his best to register a victory over the lightweight, and if he tries to do all he can we will see a splendid battle, as Favacho in unquestionably one of the cleverest boys we have here, and the same holds true of Volaire.

Volaire, in fact, is a better fighter in some ways, but Favacho's advantage in weight fully balances this if the big boy is determined to put forth all that is in him. Favacho will enter the ring about seventen pounds heavier than Volaire, and his greater height and reach are of much importance, so it will take all the other boy's cleverness and fighting powers to overcome this. If both boys go to it as they are expected to, it will be a splendid battle. Favacho's reputation and standing here depend upon the way he fights tonight, and Bobby knows it. They are due for twelve rounds.

There are three other excellent bouts on tonight's program. Palipe Flores will meet Beny Forral in the semi-final, which is scheduled for eight rounds. These clever bantams are both sluggers. Benny is the quicker lad, with more science and knowledge of the game, but Flores has shown up very well recently, and may furnish a surprise. A kayo seems very possible.

Gonzalo meets Suzara, the bantam who put up such a game battle against de Dios last week, in the semi-final, which is also booked for eight rounds. Suzara will be outweighed several pounds, but he appears to be a plucky lad who doesn't mind things like this, and this should be an excellent bout.

The first scrap is between Fighting Frisco Peralto. These boys are considerably above the usual run of curtain-raising youngsters, and it will be really worth while to come early to see this opener. They are booked for six rounds.

There are some special features on tonight's program which give added interest. Follyano, one of the boys who recently arrived from the Philippines, is an expert rope-skipper, and will give a three-minute exhibition of this art.

In addition to this Pete Alberto, another high-class boy from Manila, is due for an exhibition of deep breathing and muscular control. Alberto is a pupil of Prof. Leiderman, the famous physical culture teacher. He is splendidly developed, and has shown his physical powers both in the ring and in other athletic work.

Both these boys, by the way, are training hard and in splendid shape. They will very likely be the main-eventers for next week, as it seems very desirable to bring these high-class newcomers before the crowd as soon as possible.

The Oriental Boxing Association, by the way, announces that they still have some agreement forms open, and a number of boys awaiting fights who will be glad to sign up with Billy Tingle or Matty Smith, who will probably appear in the ring again before the month is over.

GALLOPERS WILL PLAY SEVEN GAMES WITH HURON NINE

Strong Sailor Team Makes Arrangements For Series

The Shanghai baseball team has arranged to play a series of seven games on the new Pioneer Field with the nine from the U. S. S. Huron, starting Saturday next, it is announced by Manager H. B. Gallop of the Shanghai team. The winner of four of these games is to receive a trophy in the form of a cup or shield. The two games played by these teams last Saturday and Sunday, both of which were reported in THE CHINA PRESS will not count as a part of this series.

These teams are excellently matched, and the series can be depended upon to give us some good baseball. Both nines are confident of winning the series. The Huron team has an excellent record. During the whole season they have played twenty-three official games and lost only two, winning twenty-one. Since leaving the Philippines in April they have played in all twenty-three games, not all of which were official, winning nineteen, according to Manager Farrell. In one of the "lost" games they loaned the opposing team a couple of their own players, and were defeated by one run, which is not much of a defeat. Their record includes three games with the strong marines team in Peking, the Huron nine winning two.

The sailors do not have to depend upon their score-book record here, however, as they sufficiently showed their class in their game with the Gallopers last Saturday, winning by a 4—1 score, Though Shanghai won by a close margin on Sunday it was with the aid of some outside players, and shows no inferiority of the Huron nine.

All the games scheduled will be played on Saturdays and Sundays, starting at 3:30 p.m. unless otherwise advised. It is rather too late in the season for starting games after office hours on weekdays, as the early darkness makes it impossible to complete such matches.

L. GOLDMAN BEATS TAVARES; ENTERS THE SEMI-FINALS

Singles Championship Match; Roper Cup Contest Saturday

By a victory over C. Taveres yesterday afternoon L. Goldman qualified for the semi-finals in the Singles Championship of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association, and will meet R. Canavarro this afternoon to determine which of the two will enter in the finals for the title.

Goldman beat Tavares in three straight sets yesterday, the scores being 6-3, 6-3 and 6-3. The winner's excellent driving alone was sufficient to insure him the victory, though Tavares showed up very well for a youngster, and several times flashed some freworks which gave sign of real possibilities. If he continues to develop as he appears to be doing now we may have a new champion in Shanghai in a couple of years.

In the semi-finals this afternoon P. H. Klimanek will go up against J. L. Wade and R. Canavarro will meet L. Goldman, and we will see some high-class tennis. The winners will meet in the final match for the Singles Championship here tomorrow or Saturday.

Yesterday's match completed the fourth round of the tournament. In the previous games in this round P. H. Klimanek beat L. C. Tang, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2; J. L. Wade beat Y. Kuwabara, 6-2, 6-2, 8-6; R. Canavarro beat W. Mansel-Smith, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 9-7. The last match was the most interesting, Canavarro and Mansel-Smith keenly contesting each set and playing excellent tennis.

RESULTS OF THIRD ROUND

The results of the third round of the tournament, concluded Monday, were as follows:

L. C. Tang beat T. Nakagome, 6-1, 6-0, 6-4.

P. H. Klimanek beat Romar, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Y. Yuwabara beat C. T. Whitamore, 6-3, 7-5, 7-5.

J. L. Wade walkover A. V. White.

W. Mansel-Smith beat T. G. Main.

R. Canavarro beat Witkoweki, 6-1, 6-2 6-2.

C. Tavares beat W. W. Peter, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4.

L. Goldman best A. L. Sullivan, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, 3-6, 7-5.

ROPER CUP MATCH

Next Saturday the Roper Cup Match, between the American and British tennis champions of Shanghai, will be played. This cup was presented by local men interested in tennis, and is in memory of an American by name of Roper who passed away a few years ago, and who did very much in bringing, together the two branches of the Anglo-Saxon people here in Shanghai and promoting friendly competitions in the way of sport. The Roper Cup is competed for yearly, and during the past three years has been regularly won by the American team.

This is a doubles match, the winners to take three out of five sets. The English are putting up a splendid team, and hope to capture the cup from the Americans this year. Though next Saturday's players have not been officially announced, it is understood that J. L. Wade and W. Mansel-Smith will be the English team, and Horace Gulick and T. Hager the American. This English pair is a formidable one, and the match is likely to be keenly contested.

Dotted Lines show where Rubber is cultivated

RUBBER PRODUCTS THAT ARE UNIFORMLY GOOD

A little over 15 years ago the United States Rubber Company started their own rubber plantations in Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula. They did this that they might always be certain of securing crude rubber unvarying in quality.

Today the United States Rubber Company owns 172 square miles of rubber plantations and 5,000,000 carefully selected rubber trees under the constant care and supervision of a corps of tree experts.

Recently this company announced two revolutionary advances in the art of rubber manufacture: The New Sprayed Rubber and The New Web Cord.

The first of these ensures your getting rubber articles made from the purest virgin rubber ever produced. A rubber with all its natural properties unimpaired by the addition of smoke residues and chemicals. The second advance means a cord tire of a quality even more consistent than ever before.

United States Rubber products always have been leaders in the rubber industry. Now—due to these two startling discoveries, you can be assured of rubber products that are more than ever uniformly good.

New Tuli Is Blamed For Collapse Of Thunder Peak

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Sept. 25.—If this be coincident, make the most of it! Today at the very hour, close to one-twenty p.m., that the first handful of General Sun Chuan-fang's soldiers were coming into the city to take possession of the old yamen of Lu Yung-hsiang, Thunder Peak Pagoda crashed to the ground and crumbled into a mass of ruins. Without aid of rain, wind, or earthquake, under a clear sky this old landmark of more than a thousand years, which no visitor to West Lake will ever forget simply tumbled toward the lake over whose southern shore it has stood faithful guard for ten centuries past.

There were few more famous landmarks in all China than this beautiful bell shaped pagoda of red brownish brick. From its weather worn crest there grew bushes and even trees, and standing as it did on an eminence with the hills of the Lyin Z temple as its background, it always stood out in clear cut prominence on the landscape. Not only was the old pagoda weather worn, venerable, and stately, but it was also rich in story and tradition. Both tradition and Chinese literature have it that when Thunder Peak Pagoda falls, then will go the waters of West Lake. In the face of this tradition, however, a dredge is at work within three hundred yards of the ruins, and a modern horse road is under construction around the lake side.

Such a spectacle as the ruins of this venerable landmark present is given to few to see. As your correspondent writes from a hill side overlooking them there are hundreds of people like a mass of busy ants pawing over and handling every available brick—such brick they are, too! China, and the world for that matter, will never see their like again. These hundreds are culling out those brick which are marked with baked-in characters, or which contain, in little regular round holes in their ends, small silk enwrapped scrolls of Buddhists prayers, which were inserted and built into the pagoda when it yas constructed more than ten centuries ago. The charactered bricks are finding a ready sale, and there is a constant stream of gentry, clerks and scholars with servants pacing on before them, with one, two, or even three of four of the fine brick on their shoulders. Others have them loaded in their laquered private rickshaws. The brick are hard and ring like fine china. In size they are six by fourteen by three inches, with many of a less used type six by eighteen and two inches. The scrolls of Buddhists prayers are the real prizes of the occasion, and are bringing handsome prices.

Not only has the new military governor come to the city after a cross country march as long as that of Alexander the Great when he set out to conquer the world. Not only has this landmark of centuries crashed into ruins, but along with this fall of the city's pride has come the release of the white snake, which a thousand years ago was a bewitching, beguiling, evil fairy. Because of her wickedness she was at last captured and before she could turn from the human form which she had adopted, she was imprisoned beneath the foundations of that ninety foot pagoda. The white snake is out of prison today, and along with her came her maid, a green snake who was included in her thousand years' imprisonment.

This is not the only evil that the pagoda's fall has brought upon the city, nor is it the worst. The thing which has done most to bring about the collapse of the monument, for it did collapse, beginning on the inside, is the hundreds of years of chipping dust from the bricks of the pagoda. Thirty-odd generations of pilgrims to the hundreds of temples in and about the city, have always believed that the dust from the brick was a palliative in the case of an old fashioned pain, which our grand-fathers know as belly ache. Expectant mothers, too believed the same dust efficacious in bringing the safe delivery of future pilgrims to the temples, and they also through the centuries have been fond of imbibing tea made from the brick dust of Thunder Pagoda. And now their simple, superstitious faith has robbed them of their medicine and a city is bereft of its favorite landmark.

On the other side of the lake there stands now alone the sister of the Thunder Peak, the Needle Pagoda. The Needle as its name implies is not so fat, nor is she as old and venerable as was its more lovable sister. Though she is taller and not without her charm. Her days, too, are numbered. She leans now like the tower of Pisa, and when next a new military governor comes to this city, she will probably follow in the wake of her red brick sister. But what of Tuli Sun Chuan-fang? Half the city will swear for years to come that his coming brought about the fall of the pagoda. Did it not fall at the very hour of his coming?

OPEN TRIAL OF ASSAILANT OF PRINCE REGENT

General Public Excluded As Formal Hearing Is Commenced

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Oct. 1.—After eight months' preliminary investigation the formal trial of Daisuke Namba, the 25-year old student of Waseda University who attempted to assassinate the Prince Regent on December 27, opened this morning.

The general public was excluded with the exception of those specially summoned or intimately connected with the case.

The morning papers draw sympathetic attention to the plight of Namba's father, a former member of the House of Representatives, who since the affair, has imposed on himself close confinement to his own room and is reported to be seriously ill.

SUN CHUAN-FENG GRATEFUL, SEES HANGCHOW HEADS

Provincial Capital Apparently Out Of Fight As Troops Are Sent To Kashing

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Sept. 27.—Sun Chuan-fang is still out at Zahkow, and living unpretentiously in the Chien Tang River house boat which brought him down the river to his new post at Hangchow. No announcement has been made as to the time he will come into the city to take formal possession. Conditions are quiet, and there is an under current of fears and uncertainties as to the future. Then the fall of the Thunder Peak Pagoda is an ever fruitful topic of conversation, and by many it is considered the sign of pending troubles. It is recalled that the great monument was erected during the Tang dynasty, that time when there were really five kingdoms in the country, and constant warfare between these aspirants for greater power. Of course it is pointed out that there is a deadly parallel between conditions then and now in this year of our Lord 1924.

The air of uncertainty is making people imagine that we shall have a second Kwangtung here in Chekiang. Sun Chuan-fang is here, though most of his soldiers are at Kashing, where the expected disputant of Sun's position, Chen Tiao-yuan is also with his Anhewi soldiers. It is rather expected that the impetuous despatch of the weary, travel-worn soldiers from Fukien was not so much to reinforce expected attacks against the rear of General Lu Yung-hsiang as to maintain the balance of power in Kashing itself. Sun in comparison with Chen is the local preference. However, it is recalled that certain evils have followed in the wake of Sun through recent times in Fukien, and these with opium in their vanguard are not unexpected here.

However, the sensation of the day is the fall of thirteen centuries old Thunder Peak, referred to above. This has made the people forget their troubles. Literally, there is a steady stream of people out to that side of the lake to view the ruins. From dawn to dark they are there looking, and taking part in handling and carrying away the precious relics. The most prized are the three inch scrolls of Buddhist prayers which have slept within the walls of the old pagoda for all these centuries. The bricks are more available as they are resting now in houses all over the city, in spite of police efforts to keep the visitors from carry them away. The ruins are an imposing sight, and make one almost weep to think of the disappearance of this old landmark which has been for so long the most picturesque of them all. The glory of the lake is gone, though Thunder Peak's sister, the Needle Pagoda stands still on the other side. The flaw in the view now is that the symmetry and the balance of the lake is gone. They matched each other, and one could not look at the one without turning instinctively to look across the lake at the other also. It is to be hoped that the materials from the ruins will be preserved and used for the erection of a worthy successor of this old giant of the past.

It is definitely reported now that eye witnesses saw the imprisoned fairy, White Snake, ascend into the heavens when she was released by the pagoda's fall. Since she has thus made her escape into a better land, the students of this generation will not have to face the temptations of their types of thirteen centuries ago when the beautiful fairy was ranging in the land trying to beguile candidates for the examinations from their pursuit of learning. There are other attractions now, though, and the educational authorities are not slackening in their precautions.

Nipponese Lines Reply To Protest Of Foreign Ships

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Oct. 1.—In a letter published this morning over the name of the secretary of the Trans-Pacific Freight Tariff Bureau of Japan, it is declared that the report of a protest by foreign shipping lines against the practice of Japanese lines issuing bills of lading on goods before the goods are on board a ship, as well as the reported threat of the foreign lines to break off from the conference unless the practice is stopped, is unfounded.

While it is admitted that the B-L question exists, it is stated that "all the parties concerned are exchanging views in the most amicable and friendly spirit and they hope thereby to reach a satisfactory solution."

BRITAIN SEEKS NO AMENDS FOR EVANS' SLAYING

MacDonald Explains Situation In Answer To Query In Commons

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 30.—In the House of Commons today, explaining the situation as regards the murder of Mrs. Evans in Mexico, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said that the two men who had voluntarily confessed to the crime had been committed for trial and therefore the Mexican Government had offered no amends and none had been demanded.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald quoted Mr. Hodgson, the British Charge d'Affaires in Moscow, as his authority for a denial that the Soviet had shown Mr. Hodgson or any members of his diplomatic staff hostility.

Note: It was reported in August that spies infested Mr. Hodgson's offices rendering it most difficult for Russians to have any continuous relations with the Mission.

SEPTEMBER'S WHOLESALE PRICE INDEX MUMBER IN SHANGHAI

Compiled by the Ministry of Finance Bureau of Markets

During this month war actually happens in the neighborhood of Shanghai. In response to it, hostilities were declared successively in Fengtien and Canton. Money is extremely tight in the interior, helped by the Mid-Autumn Festival. Business has almost entirely ceased. Only cereals and some other food products are very steady and show continually higher in their index figures on account of limitation of supply. These native products in the group of building materials likewise met rises, whereas other groups remain in decline because of the war. The total index number for this month is 149.3, being 0.4 percent higher as compared with the previous month.

Our monthly figures since September, 1923, are given below:

Business Conditions In The Pacific Northwest

The following resume of Pacific Northwest conditions has just been received by the office of the American Commercial Attache, from Mr. Shirl H. Blalock, Dirtrict Office Manager, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Seattle:

WHEAT AND FLOUR

Estimated production for Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington for 1924, as of August 1, 1924:

	bushels	Production in 1923
Idaho	16,227,000	30,115,000
Montana	51,406,000	52,486,000
Oregon	15,237,000	28,000,000
Washington	27,421,000	61,743,000
Total U.S.	814,000,000	785,741,000

Cargo shipments of wheat flour from Puget Sound for July, 1924:

July 1924	bbl.	July 1923 bbl.
Philippine Island	65,720	18,037
Hongkong	64,425	14,825
China	42,871	56,525
Japan	4,925	——
Honolulu	2,964	11,424
Total Orient	180,905	100,811

Shipments of wheat to Japan:

July 1924 — July 1923 53,434 bu.

Shipments of wheat and flour to the Orient:

	1st 7 mos. 1923	1st 7 mos. 1924
Wheat (bu)	662,292	2,027,513
Flour (bbl)	1,073,161	1,379,001

It seems to be the general impression that flour prices, at present (September 2) f. o. b. 5.70 per bbl. for club straight, export are too high to attract much attention from Oriental buyers.

WASHINGTON APPLES.

Yakima district.

3,000 cars this year, which is about 50 percent of last year's crop.

Wenatchee district.

All varieties are estimated to be 67 percent of last year's crop. "Delicious" variety is only 23 percent of last year's crop.

The Royal Mail has put on another motor-ship the Loch Monar, which has space for 45,000 boxes of applies.

SALMON.

The Columbia River pack is over and it is reported that the pack this year is 15 percent below that of a year ago. There was an increase in mild cure and frozen pack in the Columbia river plants.

Not all of this year's pack in Alaska has been brought out from the canneries and it is impossible to determine the exact amount of the pack for this year. It is generally stated to be slightly below that of a normal pack, due to restrictions imposed for escapement to spawning grounds.

Prices on canned salmon have kept steady at $2.50, $1.25, and $1.20 for reds, pinks and chums.

Dry salt herring is reported short this year; 35,000 to 40,000 barrels is considered normal. This year the pack will be around 7,000 barrels (250 pounds to the barrel.)

CANNED GOODS.

Jobbers are buying in small quantities, but there seems to be no shortage yith the exception of canned peas which are in keen demand.

It is generally conceded that there is a short crop of applies, due to early frosts in the Yakima and Wenatchee districts, but this should not make any shortage in canned applies as off-color and ill-shaped applies can be canned.

LUMBER.

The West Coast Lumbermen's Association reports that the demand for lumber in the agricultural sections has been stimulated by the increased buying power of the farmers. For the week ending August 23, 55 percent of the sales were for rail delivery. The rail market is considered the most dependable and most profitable for lumber from the Pacific Northwest.

Export busines is slow, and few inquiries.

Stocks of lumber cut to Japanese specifications, and which has been lying on the docks here, has been practically all sold. It is reported that the Japanese and American owners of this stock took heavy losses on this material which would have to be re-cut for the domestic market.

SHIPPING.

Mr. Paul Albert, Secretary of the Pacific Westbound Conference, Seattle has gone to Montreal to a joint meeting with the "Far East Conference" of the Atlantic Coast. This is a joint conference preliminary to the Conference with the rail lines of the entire country this fall.

There was no marked change in rates from this section during August; it is expected that there will be changes during September as reductions put into effect in the Portland Conference last June were effective until September 1.

Firms interested in receiving information of this character regarding the Pacific Northwest are requested to communicate with the office of the American Commercial Attache where a mailing list is being established.

U.S. DYE INDUSTRY REGISTERS HIGH RECORD IN 1923

American Trade Supplied 96 Percent. Of The Nation's Needs

Washington, Aug. 24.—Enormous strides made by the American dye industry are shown in the census of dyes and coal-tar chemicals for the calendar year 1923, which is about to be issued by the Tariff Commission. The report shows a record output for the year 1923, with conspicuous progress in the production for the first time in this country of many important dyes and other synthetic organic chemicals, as well as a further reduction in selling prices.

Dyes produced in the United States supplied about 96 percent of the apparent consumption in 1923, and in addition, American manufacturers enjoyed an extensive export trade.

The domestic production of dyes in 1923 by 85 firms was 93,667,542 pounds, the largest in the history of the domestic industry. During 1922 the output by 87 firms was 64,632,187 pounds. The total sales for 1923 was 86,567,446 pounds, with a value of $47,223,161. Pre-war production in the year 1914 by seven firms was 6,619,729 pounds, valued at $2,470,096. The output was then dependent upon foreign countries, as most of the intermediates were imported—chiefly from Germany.

The average sales price of all dyes for 1923 was 54½ cents per pound, compared with 60 cents in 1922, 33 cents in 1921 and $1.26 in 1917, the first year for which a census of dyes and coal-tar chemicals was compiled by the Tariff Commission.

100 NEW DYES MADE IN 1923

During 1923 nearly 100 dyes were produced for which no production in the United States had been shown in 1922. In addition, other dyes, which had been reported previously in small quantities, were manufactured on a substantial commercial scale. These comprise, for the most part, dyes of the specialty type, of greater complexity and more difficult and costly to manufacture. New products include dyes for silk, cotton, wool, color lakes and other purposes, and are representative of the different classes of dyes by chemical classification. The domestic industry, although deficient to some extent in the production of certain vat dyes and other colors, supplies over 75 percent of the domestic requirements.

The production of vat dyes (other than indigo) in 1423 was 1,766,383 pounds, the largest in the history of the industry, an increase of 640,391 pounds over that of 1922. This class of dyes produces shades of high fastness on cotton goods which will stand the modern laundry treatment. As the public is appreciating more and more the value and importance of fast dyes, the consumption of this group is increasing and their increased production is a notable development of the domestic industry. The production of synthetic indigo during 1923 was 28,347,259 pounds.

Total imports of coal-tar dyes for 1823 were 3,098,193 pounds, valued at $3,151,363, compared with 3,682,631 pounds, valued at $5,243,257 for the year 1922. The total imports during 1913, previous to the extensive development of the domestic industry, were 45,950,895 pounds. Of the total imports during 1923, 47 percent come from Germany, 28 percent from Switzerland, 12 percent from Italy, 6 percent from France, 4 percent from England and 3 percent from all other countries.

The exports of coal-tar dyes during 1923 totaled 17,924,266 pounds with a value of $5,565,267, compared with a total of 8,344,187 pounds with a value of $3,996,443 during 1922.

REVIEWS GERMANY'S TRADE

"Prior to the war, Germany, with an output totaling three-fourths of all synthetic dyes, produced, dominated the world's markets," says the report. "Of the remaining one-fourth, one-half was made from German intermediates, and its production was accordingly dependent upon Germany.

"The acute shortage of dyes arising in the various dye-consuming markets, due to the disappearance of German dyes shortly after the beginning of the war, was soon followed by prices of unprecedented levels, while certain dyes were not to be had at any price. This dye famine threatened the activities of the vast textile industries as well as other industries dependent upon dyes for their operation. The manufacture of dyes was soon entered upon in the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy, and each of these countries has developed a dye industry capable of supplying from 89 to over 90 percent of its requirements and has, in addition, exported significant quantities of dyes since the war. As a result of this remarkable period of expansion and development, the world's present capacity to produce dyes is nearly double that of the pre-war period.

"This existing capacity to produce over and above normal requirements is resulting in an era of severe competition in the world's markets, which may eliminate many of the plants now in operation.

SEEKS LOST TRADE

"On account of the commanding position in the welfare of the German nation held by the chemical industry, it is highly probable that Germany will make every effort to regain her lost export trade, amounting to about ninetenths of her total trade. One of the first steps in this direction has been to form affiliations in the new producing countries. Thus, in Italy it is stated that one of the largest dye producers, the Bianchi Co., has a working agreement under whose terms the Germans are to supply technical assistance, and in return for which Germany shares profits; exports of dyes by this firm are restricted to the Italian colonies.

"In the establishment of branch plants in the new producing countries, the Swiss appear to have been much more successful to date than the Germans. Three large Swiss manufacturers now operate, either collectively or individually, plants in the United States, Great Britain, Italy and France.

"The occupation of the Ruhr in 1923 resulted in a reduced production of dyes in Germany. The total output in 1923 was about 145,000,000 pounds, as compared with 193,000,000 pounds in 1923. This simulated the export trade of the Unied States and Great Britain to meet the requirements of China, India and other consuming nations, non-manufacturers of dyes. The effects of the occupation of the Ruhr had largely disappeared in the early part of 1924, and German dyes again offered sharp competition in the markets of the Far East."

YUE CHONG COAL COMPANY
25-26 North Soochow Road, Shanghai.
Telephones: North 651 and North 1717

We have been carrying on our business for more than thirty years and have been enjoying the confidence and commendation of the public. We are selling the coals of the best Chinese coal mines, such as, Dah Doong Coal, Ching Hsing Coal, Chung Hsing Coal, Tung Woo Coal, Houchi Coal, Liu Ho Kow Coal as well as Saghaline Coal. The Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo Railway, Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes, and Italian, American, French and Chinese Warships, Cotton Mills and other industrial factories have been purchasing great quantities of coal from us, and our annual sale amounts to over 200,000 tons.

Our coal is best selected and at moderate prices, and consumers may rely on us in obtaining the right kind of coal as named on their order. We are well versed in the qualities of the various coals suitable for different boilers.

Orders from foreign warships are especially welcome. It is understood that warships used to purchase coal from the merchants who are not belonging to the coal trade and who obtain their coal after passing many hands. These merchants do not understand what is the right coal for warships, who are liable to be cheated by these merchants. Such practices bring serious damage to the names of our Chinese coal mines.

We are doing business on thoroughly honest basis in a measure to preserve the name of our Chinese coals as well as to push our business. We guarantee the satisfaction of foreign steamships who may place orders with us. Sufficient stock of the coals is always available to meet our customers' demands, either for temporary order or for yearly contract. Please write or telephone us and our representative will call on you.

General Lu's Strategic Position Today

THE big question mark in this week's news of the fighting in the Shanghai area is; How much longer can General Lu hold out? As stated previously in these columns of The China Press, whatever happens to General Lu ultimately he is bound to go down in Chinese history as a good fighting man. He has stood up against tremendous odds and he went through a period in Hangchow which would have eliminated any ordinary man when a large section of his troops rebelled and joined the enemy. Foreigners in Shanghai are occupying a neutral position and are taking no sides in the present conflict between General Lu and General Chi, but that does not prevent one from expressing admiration for General Lu as a good fighting man, regardless of the right or wrong of his position in the general scheme of things Chinese.

It is said that General Lu is outnumbered on the North from Huangtu to Liuho in the ratio of four to one and that the Kiangsu guns have a longer range than the Chekiang artillery, but nevertheless the Chekiang side is hanging on with dogged tenacity. It must be taken into consideration, of course, that as General Lu has withdrawn in the direction of Shanghai, he has strengthened his position from a strategic standpoint through shortening his lines, but there must be an end somewhere to the men and munitions he can send to the front. Reports of the last few days tell of a beginning of fighting to the south of Shanghai in the direction of Sungkiang, and if this develops as seriously as the battle on the northern sectors, just how General Lu will be able to hold out much longer is beyond understanding. But there have been many surprises in this war. The first came when General Chi Hsieh-yuan of Nanking failed to break through in the first few days as many persons expected and as General Chi without question thought himself. General Chi is also a good fighting man and a younger man than General Lu, but his difficulties undoubtedly have been largely due to what should have been his chief element of strength. His chief element of strength is his superior man-power, but his forces are made up of troops drawn from many parts of the North. Undoubtedly it has required almost super-human ability to weld this force together and to preserve harmony in the ranks. Troops sent to the Kiangsu front by General Wu Pei-fu doubtless have not taken kindly to orders from a strange general.

On General Lu's side he has had the advantage of a unified command and a centralised authority. Undoubtedly his initial successes were due to the 25,000 troops which he incorporated into his forces from Fukien Province. These Fukienese troops, after their defeat at the hands of General Sun Chuan-fang in Fukien, entered Chekiang and asked to be incorporated into General Lu's army. General Lu assented and immediately put them in the front lines to face Kiangsu. They had the advantage of being recently experienced in warfare and the added advantage of having an excellent grudge against the North. Furthermore they were placed in a position where fighting was the only alternative: there was no other place to go, so they fought and gave a good account of themselves.

But to get back to General Lu's position, there can be no question of its precariousness. The fact that the Chekiang forces are now sending raw coolie recruits to the front shows that, and the further fact that desperate means are being taken to raise money in this area by forcing a two-million dollar bond issue is a further indication of the seriousness of the situation from the Chekiang side. This undoubtedly will have an adverse effect upon General Lu's popularity in this area, but the same thing is taking place on the other side if we are to believe reports coming through from Soochow, Wusih, Chinkiang and Nanking.

In spite of what General Lu and his staff are saying about a northern advance, the facts in the case are that Chekiang is not thought to be seriously trying to advance. Chekiang is hanging on desperately to what it has and undoubtedly will be highly satisfied if it can continue to hold on. There really is no necessity for General Lu to advance. If he can hold his present position, it really amounts to a victory, for he is thereby detaining all of the Kiangsu forces in this area and preventing General Chi Hsieh-yuan from sending reinforcements to the North to help General Wu Pei-fu against General Chang Tso-lin.

The war will be won or lost from the standpoint of General Lu not on this front, but on the Manchurian front. If the Mukden warlord is able to defeat Chihli or even prevent Chihli from entering Manchurian territory, the result in the North will be a stalemate just as it was two years ago when General Wu was able to defeat Mukden on the plains of Chihli but was unable to press the victory farther than the Great Wall. And if the fight in the North is a deadlock, it will be a deadlock here likewise. If this should happen in the North, the fighting here gradually may die out and both sides probably will be willing to make a compromise which would contain many face-saving gestures.

There is hope, of course, everywhere, both among Chinese and foreigners, that there will be no stalemate this time—that one side or the other will win a decided victory—but the alternative must also be faced of a final deadlock which would leave the situation in pretty much the same position as it was at the beginning. General Lu would not be the Governor of Chekiang, but he would be the dictator of a triangle of territory around Shanghai carved out of the heart of the wealthiest section of China.

But regardless of how it comes out finally, we must all take off our hats to the Chinese soldier who has demonstrated to the world that he can fight. This fighting business is all wrong and is bound to leave a lot of new problems just as serious as the ones it sought to eradicate, but regardless of this, China is demonstrating right here at the doors of Shanghai that she can fight. The men are making a terrible bungle of their mechanical weapons, but in spite of this they are fighting and thus far there has been no indication of the oft-alleged yellow streak. Some of the shots are finding their marks, as is shown in the 1,500 wounded in Shanghai hospitals and probably double this number on the other side.

The last paragraph, of course, refers to the land fighters—we do not want anyone to think we include the Chinese navy in this statement.

The Question Of Mosul

IT is a far cry from latter-day politics in China to the Anglo-Turkish dispute relative to Mosul, but the latter controversy at least serves to show that political crises are no monopoly of China and that Europe also has her own troubles. For some time past trouble has been brewing between Great Britain and Turkey on the Mosul issue, and latterly the strained situation has assumed a menacing aspect, to the extent of compelling British armed forces to be on the qui vive against any surprise move by the Turks. Today the situation has eased somewhat with the prevalence of saner counsels, for the time being at any rate. The Geneva telegram published in another column today informing us that a step towards the settlement of the Mosul difficulty has been taken by the Council of the League in appointing a special committee of three to enquire into the matter on the spot and report to the Council is distinctly encouraging and emphasises afresh the value of the League as a steadying factor in European politics despite all the glib talk on the part of some publicists that the League, as at present constituted, is a somewhat nebulous body. Even though the frontier situation in connection with Mosul is admittedly precarious, the mere consciousness on the part of the Turks that they are being closely watched by the League must exert a tremendous moral effect, and thus Fethi Bey, on behalf of the Turkish Government, has been persuaded to give a solemn undertaking that there will be no disturbance, both sides undertaking to maintain the status quo of the frontier until a decision, which they will accept, has been reached by the Council, and both parties agreeing to share the cost of the investigation by the Spceial Committee. That is so much to the good and shows the birth of a new disposition on the part of European Governments, including that of Turkey, to substitute arbitration for armed conflict. To restate it in other terms, there is apparent a readiness and a willingness to exhaust all the resources of diplomacy for the settlement of major dispute before resorting to graver steps.

Apart from political considerations in regard to Mosul, there are not a few psychological factors worth examining. Recently a short series of articles appeared in a London contemporary on peoples who will be very nearly affected by the decision on the Iraq frontier question, passages from which will be read with special interest just now. They tell of the survivals of very ancient races; of the remnants, yet living, of Christian Churches that trace their descent to ages when the fundamental doctrines of Christianity were being discussed, disputed and defined, and even to Apostolic times; of strange beliefs, far older still, in which tenets of East and West, sun worship, fire worship, devil worship and primeval Nature worship, are incongruously joined with doctrines and rites borrowed from Judaism, from Islam, and from these Christian communities. There are villages of Jews still speaking Aramaic in the Kurdish uplands. How did they get there? Are they, indeed, a remnant of the Babylonian captivity? Another tribe is said to have come into the land with the destroying hordes of the awful Mongol conquerors. Hulagu Khan, who wiped out the Bagkdad of the Khalifs with all its accumlated treasures of civilisation and of learning, and who so devastated the fertile plain of Mesopotamia that it has not recovered to this day, led the Turkish horde. Another followed, Tamerlane, who almost ruined the rising Ottoman Empire on that stricken field of Angora when he routed the host of Sultan Bayazid, and captured the terrible "Ilderim," the "Thunder Bolt," himself.

These genealogies, like the tomb of the prophet Nahum at Al Qosh, take us back a long way, but even the Empire of the Assyrians is as of yesterday compared with the tomb of Noah or that of Adam himself, to be found lower down the rivers. It is rather a shock to know that railhead is at Asshur, the royal city of Tiglath-Pileser, and that American motor-cars await the arrival of the trains. It is a shock, perhaps ruder still, to learn that the present head of the Devil worshippers—though he dresses and looks his official part to perfection—keeps five of these cars himself. But then the East is full of shocks, and these innovation do not always or immediately affect ancient races. Railways and American cars may permeate the mind which holds fast by such traditions, but the process will hardly be rapid and the change is apt to be superficial.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

By Mathy

THE NEEDLE

Who made the first needle? Perhaps some clever wife, who pierced the shank of a fine fish-bone to carry a thread of plant fibre or catgut.

Today the needle is the symbol of civilisation: for where you find human beings this side of barbarism you find clothes, and where clothes are there are needles.

Man is a tool-using animal. And the needle is the commonest and smallest of tools.

The spider spins his web, the worm his cocoon; the man, by nature naked, weaves his outmost cuticle with this sharp, shining shaft of steel.

I have never seen the needle factories. Yet they are in my mind's eye huge, many-windowed barracks, and out of them march, day after day, the little soldiers of civilisation, in silver-gleaming armor and golden helmets, in companies and regiments, to go to Alaska and Cape Town, to Tokio and New York; to the hands of the mother and the sister; to the morocco case upon the mahogany dressing-table of the darling of wealth, to the workbox of the wife of the people, to the dark rooms of the slaves of the sweat-shop, to the pin-cushion of the bachelor, to the knapsack of the soldier, the bundle of the pioneer, the kit of the sailor. Wherever go the animals called human the little needle dances attendance.

The sword is the instrument of glory; it has been multiplied by inventive genius, transformed into the bullet and the bomb, and made to fall in thunderous hail to magnify the hideous trade of murder.

The pen is the instrument of thought. It has become a type, and its printed words rain thick from the presses in newspapers, magazines, and books.

The knife and spoon have been elaborated into the manifold utensils of the chef who prepares the complicated delicacies for the gourmet.

The rude flint of the ape-man has become the chisel of a Rodin; the coarse hair-clump of the caveman has grown into the brush of a millet.

The needle has developed also. Elias Howe dreamed he was pursued by savages whose spears had holes in them near the point. He awoke to devise the needle with its eye at the piercing-end. Hence sewing-machine, doing the work of twenty seamstresses, flying with the speed of an electric spark.

It is an automatic, machine-using, power-driven age, with the needle buzzing attendance.

When Gustave Charpentier, the musician, was presented with the Sword of the Academy by Mimi Pinso, on behalf of the working girls of Paris, whom he had befriended, he replied:

"The sword, the pen, and the brush have won great glory for our country. But has not the needle also its share? A statue of Mercie, a score of Masssenet, a speech of Poincare, each is an ornament to France; but a Paris robe, worn by a Parisienne, is it not also a thing of art, a marvelious art, all the more precious art because enduring but a little time?"

Volunteer Songs

THE JAPANESE COMPANY.

What is really good of Nippon is it rhymes so well with grip on,
And the soldiers rhyme so well with rice and saki.
As you know I've no reticense (and the doggerel poet's license)
So what's wrong with bringing in the sukiaki?

He's a really jolly fellow, is this little man of yellow
And a volunteer I very much admire.
If it makes me somewhat plumper, I'll quaff this heady bumper,
That'll make my estimation go much higher.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

It was evident that he was very sad,
It was clear that he was very angry, too.
"What's the trouble," I inquired, "that you've had,
What causes you, my friend, to be so blue?"
He danced around in circles in the dust,
He clenched his fists and let his passion rise;
He fairly bulged with sorrow and disgust,
He permitted tears to glisten in his eyes.

"I had a dog," he answered, "oh, a beaut!
I got him as a pup three years ago;
He became a very large and handsome brute,
It seemed that he would never cease to grow.
He was bigger than a calf—a thoroughbred—
He could lick a dozen wildcats at a time;
But freedom's gone, and liberty is dead,
Conditions in this country are a crime!

"He chewed a little kid, the other day,
A thing that he had never done before;
They've taken every privilege away,
There's not much joy in living any more!"
His sorrow seemed to choke him; with a groan
He turned his back, and stood with bended head;
I asked him in a sympathetic tone
If the luckless little sufferer was dead.

"I don't know," he replied, "about the kid;
The doctors said they thought she might survive,
But think of what the fool policemen did—
They came and took my dog—no, not alive!
They didn't even ask me if they might;
Just shot him as they'd shoot a common cur;
I'd quit this country, if I could, tonight—
But thanks for being sympathetic, sir."

Some Everyday Science

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

I always have the feeling that I may be doing some little good in the world when I answer, to the best of my ability, such questions as the following, which have come under the seal of an important investment house in New York:

"Will you please advise me on following questions?

"Question No. 1. 'A' stands at the bow of a boat, and 'B' at the stern, playing ball. Disregarding the pressure of the wind, or any other natural element due to the movement of the boat would it take longer for the ball to go from 'A' to 'B' than from 'B' to 'A'?"

Answer, No, not if thrown with the same force.

"Question No. 2. If a person at the top of a box car, traveling, say, sixty miles an hour, dropped a ball from the top of the car to the floor, would the ball fall directly beneath the point from which it was dropped? 'B' contends, against 'A', that the moment the ball leaves the hand of the holder it becomes an independent system, and is no longer affected by the laws of motion governing the original system, but only by gravity, and therefore it would fall behind the point."

Answer. Assuming, as in your first question, no atmospheric resistance, or other interference, the ball would fall straight down. 'B's' mistake is one that is made over and over again in connection with problems of this kind. And it is no slight matter, for, from an educational point of view, it involves the very foundations of a correct understanding of the science of the motion of material bodies. The ball, after leaving the hand that held it, retains, by virtue of the principle of inertia, the forward motion originally imparted to it when it was in physical connection with the car.

Separation from the holder's hand does not destroy this initial motion. Atmospheric resistance would, of course, cause a slight retardation of the ball after it left the hand, if the air in the car was not carried along with the car. But, by the supposition of no outside interference which I have introduced and which you, no doubt, intended, the falling ball is shielded from such loss of forward motion, and, while dropping, must still go on with the same speed as that of the car.

If you could trace the course of the ball in space you would find that it followed, with reference to the ground, a path sloping forward and downward, and the steepness of the slope would be inversely proportional to the speed of the car shared by the ball. The slope would be, in reality, a curve, increasing in steepness toward the bottom, owing to the acceleration of the downward motion by gravity, as compared with the uniform forward motion.

Nevertheless, the ball, after being released, would be independent of any subsequently acquired motion of the car. If, for instance, the speed of the car were suddenly increased after the ball had begun to fall, the motion of the latter would not be affected, and in that case, the ball would strike the floor to the rear of the point directly under that from which it had been released. Similarly, if the speed of the car were decreased, th ball would strike forward of that point.

This shows you why in statements referring to the Einstein theory of relativity, care is taken to point out that, in order that the motions taking place within a closed system shall be unaffected by the motion of the system, the latter must be uniform and in a straight line.

Now, this law of inertia that we have been talking about, explains why the naswer to your first question was "no." Leaving out of account atmospheric resistance the movement of the boat does not affect that of the ball with reference to thrower and catcher. When the ball is thrown forward from "A" to "B" its speed, over the deck, is the same as when it is thrown backward from "B" to "A," and the distance traversed between thrower and catcher is also the same.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

The Ensemble Costume United Long Tunic, Skirt a Long Coat

We hear much of the ensemble costume nowadays. But of course there is nothing new in the idea or the name. We knew it first as the three-piece costume—the "trois piece" of the French dressmakers. Then it was actually in three pieces—a skirt with a bodice closely fitted over the skirt and a well-fitted jacket. In the beginning one very seldom bought a three-piece costume ready made. They were usually rather expensive propositions and many dressmarkers worked out the skirt and blouse, sending the material for the jacket to the tailor.

Later, as the one-piece frock became the rule, the three-piece costume often only consisted of two pieces; a frock and a coat to go with it.

Now, interestingly enough, the three-piece really is in three pieces, only now the fashion seems to be to call it an ensemble costume. The important thing about it to many women is that makers of readymade clothing have taken hold of the idea and have got ready for us quite a number of these ensemble costumes all ready made at prices that do not demand a very large dress allowance.

Meantime the exclusive French and American dressmakers have not given up the idea. Doucet in her recent showing in Paris made much of an ensemble consisting of skirt, long coat and long tunic blouse.

The sketch shows an ensemble of American origin that makes use of the long tunic. It is Chinese blue georgette, and is worn over a black satin skirt, which really consists of a black satin skirt mounted on a thin lining hanging from the shoulders. The coat is of black satin trimed with fur, lined with blue to match the tunic.

The coat here comes to the bottom of the skirt, and the tendency is to a lengthening of coats and shortening of skirts. Molyneux in his new ensembles makes his coats of three-quarter length. Many new ones are in seven-eighth length and occasionally they are like the one shown in the sketch, just as long as the skirt or frock worn beneath.

Black satin three-piece costume has Chinese blue tunic, embroidered. There are fur collar and cuffs on coat.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

WHAT CAN YOU TELL FROM YOUR HAIR?

If It's Golden

The golden-haired girl is a man's girl.

Men like her, and she likes men. She is often capable of making firm friends among her own sex, but just the same she is classified as a man's girl.

She is usually of an independent nature, and is sometimes stubborn.

WHEN YOU PLAY CARDS

"She who wishes to win a heart or retain one," says an old-fashioned book on manners, "should never permit her admirers to behold her at cards, as her anxiety they produce is as destructive to beauty as to sentiment."

That was in the days of straight whist or euchre.

What about mah jong? What about bridge, and what about occasional attempts at poker?

It is well enough that that advice was not always heeded, for many a romance since that book was written has matured at a card table, and matches made vis-a-vis over the green top of a card table are doubtless of as lasting and satisfactory a nature as those that mature to the measure of a one-step or fox trot.

WITH BLUEBERRIES OR HUCKLEBERRIES

Mix and sift together four level teaspoons of baking powder, a pinch of salt, two cups of flour a a halfteaspoon each of cloves, allspice and ginger (or cinnamon). Cream three tablespoons of butter with twothirds cup of sugar. Add an egg and mix with the creamed suger and butter, and then a cup of molasses. Now combine with the dry ingredients and then add a quart of huckleberries, which have been picked over and dusted with a little flour to keep from sticking. Mix together, taking care to break berries no more than necessary, and turn into a round cake pan and bake for about three-quarters of an hour. Serve warm with creamed butter and sugar—hard sauce.

Muffins

Two cups flour, three tablespoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, three-fourths cup milk, two eggs, one tablespoon shortening, one cup berries.

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add milk slowly. Then the well-beaten eggs and melted shortening. Mix well and add the berries, which have been properly picked over and floured. Grease muffin pans or tins and drop a spoon of butter into each. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

THE ROYAL

The British Royal Dealers announce that Royal sales in Great Britain and Ireland for 1923 exceed by many hundreds the hitherto highest year's Sales Record. In a so-called year of depression this is a wonderful tribute to merit. It is no mere coincidence that so many Big British Business Houses are standardising on Royal Typewriters.

Stubborn Case of Boils & Pimples
"Can honestly say I am quite cured"

Our portrait is of Mr. W. BRIDAL, 27, Strand Street, Newtown, Mountain Ash, South Wales, Great Britain, who writes:
"It gives me great pleasure in telling you about the remarkable cure I found in Clarke's Blood Mixture for boils and pimples. After having suffered from time to time from both, and trying all kinds of so-called remedies, and being under doctor's treatment, I thought of Clarke's Blood Mixture, having tried it years ago with success for a similar complaint. After taking one bottle it seemed to drive them out, and after the second bottle I found a decided improvement, and continuing with your Mixture I can honestly say I am quite cured."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Eruptions, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout. Pleasant to take and free from anything injurious.
Of all Dealers. Ask for and see you get
